Dr O Ajayi

Consultant interventional radiologist

I was born in the UK and moved over Nigeria to study until the late 1990s. I then moved back to the midlands and completed my medical training at The University of Birmingham before undertaking basic surgical training. I completed post graduate radiology training in the with a fellowship in Interventional Radiology. I am very interested and passionate about education and I am currently a college tutor for Radiology.

Growing up in a developing country increased my appreciation for the NHS and what we do. It is a service I will continue to contribute to.
